Cellular composition of human meningiomas: relationship with histological subtypes. Meningiomas are slow-growing tumours of the CNS. Histologically, meningiomas are classified into three main subtypes: fibrous meningioma, benign meningothelial meningioma and atypical meningioma (WHO 2004 classification). In the present study, we investigated the expression of Ki-67, Tg, p53, p16, bcl-2, Rb, cyclin D1, and cyclin E in a total of 44 human meningiomas with different histological subtypes using immunohistochemistry. Expression was quantified using the positive tumor cell index (PTI). The index for Ki-67 was found to be significantly increased in atypical meningiomas compared with benign meningiomas (median value, 39.8 vs 9.0; $p = 0.012$) and meningothelial meningiomas (median value, 39.8 vs 2.7; p Q: How can I keep opening and closing the same TextView over
