How to add a widget to a browser window. How to turn off a pop-up window When you first go into your browser settings, for most users it's just a collection of buttons and menu items. However, each browser has its own unique features. In this article, you'll learn how to set up your Google Chrome browser. Setting up Google Chrome is primarily determined by the language you prefer to use your computer in. And, depending on your choice, the browser settings will also change. If you prefer to use the browser in Russian, then your Google Chrome preferences will also be in Russian. In case you choose another option, your settings will be aligned with that language. So, in order to configure the browser in Russian, first go to "Settings" and find there the item "Languages". Clicking on it, you will see a list of languages that can be enabled in the settings. In this list, select the Russian language. After that, when you enter the program will appear a window in which you need to click on the button "Change the language". Then another menu will appear, in which you need to select the Russian language. Then a window will appear, where you need to confirm that you want to change the language and press the "Ok" button. Clicking on the "Change Language" button takes you to the language settings page, where you can choose the language that will be used in the program for any actions (for example, when working with documents). To learn more about configuring languages for each application, see the article Configuring Languages in Windows 10. Note: you can enable the Russian language in any program that you install on your computer. On the Languages page, you can find a language bar that contains several language options, including Russian. If you miss the built-in language bar, you can download an add-on for Windows 10 that will make this language bar available for all applications. In this article, you will learn how to install the language bar in Windows 10. Windows 10 has a built-in language bar There is a built-in language bar in Windows 10 that contains all the languages that are available on the system. If you miss the built-in language bar, you can easily download an add-on for Windows 10 that will make this language bar available for all applications. The language bar is available under "Control Panel" under "Clock, Language & Region". However, if you want to be able to use a language extension that automatically switches between languages, you need to download the language bar for Windows 10. In this video, I'll show you how to install the language bar in Windows 10, as well as how to set it up. Windows 10 has a built-in language installer that can run in the background. In this video, I will show you how to disable it. To do this, go through the Start menu to Settings > Time & Language > Region & Language. Then, on the "Region and Language" tab, click the "Move Languages" button. In the window that appears, click "Add" and select the desired language. Then click "OK". Done! All languages are removed. How to add a language back. Open "Start" > "Settings" > "Time & Language" > "Region & Language" > "Add Language", select the language you want and click "OK". If everything was successful, the languages will be added back. How to change the language for the whole system. Open "Start" > "Settings" > "Time and Language" > "Region and Language". How to change the language in Windows 10 to Russian or English Changing the language on a computer with Windows operating system is not very difficult. You can do it in different ways, which depend on your needs, but in general the algorithm is the same for all versions and editions of the operating system. To change the interface language you can use third-party programs (there are a lot of them, e.g. Real Sizer, Fastlane), but it's easier to perform this operation using built-in tools. So, let's begin. Launch the program and click "OK". The main menu will appear and you have to choose "File" - "Edit". This action will open the editing menu. In it look for the item "Language" and click on it. In the menu that appears, select "Set as Default". Then we choose the language you want. If you want to change one language layout to another, then click on "Set as Default" and select the layout you want. If you do not need to change it, then set "Default" and click "Ok".
