which time has passed, all from the comfort of your keyboard. KEYMACRO will work with all applications that have keyboard shortcuts. This means that you can easily make macros that work with all your software - you can make macros for Google Chrome, Internet Explorer, Firefox, Photoshop, Lightroom, Garage Band, Photoshop CS6, and many more. KEYMACRO comes with over 500 macros to help you get things done easily. If you don't find a macro to fit your needs, you can create your own. KEYMACRO is free for individual use. It is available for Mac, Windows, and Linux. Keyboard shortcuts are a feature that you might not know exists but can become very useful. For example, you might be making a complex program in Photoshop, only to find that you have used your mouse to select the shortcut that you wanted to use. After spending several minutes retyping the shortcut, you may be willing to give KEYMACRO a try. Keyboard shortcuts are often used for using search engines, adding text, adding links, opening programs, and more. Some shortcuts are time-based, but they can also be generic. For example, you may want to open a link in Chrome, and that shortcut would look like this: OPENING GOOGLE CHROME This shortcut would open Google Chrome and enter the address into the URL bar. This would become much easier to use than typing the URL address into the address bar of the browser. The shortcut can also be quite simple, for example, you might type in the shortcut of Google Chrome: GOOGLE CHROME This would open Google Chrome, and you can see the shortcut in the address bar. Sometimes, keyboard shortcuts can save a lot of time, and help you get things done more easily. Many people have probably heard about them before, but you may not be aware of all the benefits that they can provide. Contact Us :+1 (646) 569-1542 Support:
