FO 09:.Coffee chain Tim Hortons has extended an apology to a customer in Peel Region for calling a refund request "ridiculous" and "worthless." George Lehr was charged a fee of $4.99 for a bag of Tim Hortons' donuts that was intended for charity. "I was very upset," Lehr told CTV Toronto. "I felt that I was being treated wrongly." The 39-year-old Mississauga resident requested a refund, but was denied. Lehr then filed a complaint with the Ontario Human Rights Commission, and was given a call on Sunday from a Tim Hortons location in Brampton. The representative apologized to Lehr and offered him a coupon in exchange for a free pastry. "I was absolutely shocked, absolutely floored," said Lehr, who was charged for his $4.99 donuts in February. "I was just blown away." "To hear that they apologized was fantastic," he said. "It's amazing that the tea has been poured." Peel Regional Police said there was never any crime committed. "It was an innocent misunderstanding," said Const. Andy Pattenden of the Brampton Regional Police Service. However, police said the Tim Hortons representative has the right to refuse to provide the free donuts. "We don't know that the person who called in on behalf of Tim Hortons was really an employee there,◆"

Development On May 16, 2014, Austin Mateljan and Jeremy Patterson announced the creation of Startlanes Media. Their first announcement was the announcement that they would be bringing the 2014 TCR Series to life in a video game for the PC. They announced that they had officially set up the development of the game at their new company, Startlanes Media. Mateljan, who worked on the Forza series of video games for Microsoft Studios, began working on the game by handling the engine for the game. He then lead the team to create a simulation for the TCR ruleset. Lanik, who worked at Forza Studios on the Forza series of video games, worked on the project as a game designer and vocalist. The team of Matt O'Toole was chosen by Mateljan to direct and lead the project. He worked on the Battlefield series for Electronic Arts. Austin Mateljan made the choice of adding a simulation for the TCR ruleset. This choice was partially inspired from a feature in the Forza series. Austin Mateljan, Gavin Lanik, and Matt O'Toole are the only developers on the game.

Reception Critical reception The game received positive reviews with several reviewers praising the game's simulation for the TCR ruleset, realistic cars, detail, and graphics. Several reviewers have criticized the game for a lack of AI for the other drivers. Multiple reviewers noted how hard it was to race other cars. Retail reception The game has had good retail sale in the United States with the base version selling over 5 million copies. The AI does not become any better the more you play it. Also watching a game with the other team is annoying because you never get to see anything. Also the interface makes it so much more annoying to use. Liked the idea of the game and was intrigued by the NFL aspect, but it just got too much for me.A review of the comparative effectiveness of needle-free jet and needle-free jet needle-free devices.
