He studied in France, Switzerland and Italy (the latter, where he became a student of Édouard André) and worked in Paris from 1874. Career Coulombier was the son of a carpenter and was originally a draftsman at a foundry in Paris. His knowledge of metalwork led him to continue his studies at the École des Beaux-Arts in Paris, where he won several prizes, and finally to study architecture under Charles Garnier, who was then working in St. Petersburg. He became the architect for Garnier's construction of the Casino de Paris (1880) and the Musée Garnier in La Chaux-de-Fonds, which was finally opened in 1887. Coulombier set up his own practice in the practice of his friend Henri Sauvage. In 1882 he also built the offices for the newspaper, Le Figaro, in Paris. He collaborated with Gaston Bodu  on the Basilica of Notre Dame de France in Paris (1889–1893). Coulombier also designed several theatre buildings, in particular for Th  tre de la Cit  and Th  tre du Ch teau. He died in Paris in 1923. The 1 April 1939 issue of Theatre Magazine contains a profile of Coulombier. Main works France Ch teau de Dampierre, La Baule, Loire, d0c515b9f4

To assess the accuracy and reliability of the diagnosis of dyslipidemia according to the 2004 recommendations of the National Cholesterol Education Program Adult Treatment Panel III (ATP III) compared with a standard diagnostic chart used by physicians. Observational study. Nine urban centers participating in the Austrian National Screening Program for the Prevention of Coronary Heart Disease. A total of 2055 adult outpatients. The diagnostic accuracy and reliability of the diagnosis of hypercholesterolemia, hypertriglyceridemia, low levels of high-density lipoprotein cholesterol, and high levels of low-density lipoprotein cholesterol were assessed by applying the ATP III diagnostic guidelines with the help of a standard diagnostic chart. The prevalence of true-positive, false-positive, true-negative, and false-negative diagnosis was determined by comparing the standard chart with the ATP III guideline recommendations. The overall accuracy, sensitivity, and specificity of the diagnosis of dyslipidemia were 93.3%, 96.6%, and 92.6%, respectively. The degree of diagnostic reliability was high for all tested lipid
