Q: Split multi part text file into 2 files I have a text file that has the following format: 138601352301345 a 138601352301345 b And I'd like to break it into 2 separate files, one for each part. Here's my code so far:

import re
lines = open('file.txt').read().splitlines()
with open('fileA.txt','w') as out:
for line in lines:
line = re.sub('[0-9]+',' ',line)
line = re.sub('\s+', ' ', line)
print('%d' % (line))
out.write('%d' % (line))
I'm only trying to keep the part before the first 'a' in fileA.txt and after the second 'a' in fileB.txt.
file.txt 138601352301345 a 138601352301345 b 138601352301345 c 138601352301345 d
A: This should do the trick with open('file.txt') as f:
for line in f:
line = line.strip()
if line == 'a':
with open('fileA.txt', 'w') as out:
out.write(line)
break
elif line == 'b':
with open('fileB.txt', 'w') as out:

There's such a personal connection to places that I get to experience touring together with so many others. Some people have a bad story to share about their last show, or how their friend made out, or how they never took their kids anywhere and they do it now. You hear about everyone's great stories and everyone has a different take on the road. I think I've had the luck of having great shows in difficult cities, but am always looking for that next big show to make my jaw drop. Earlier this year I went on the west coast with my band The Story in Review for a 4 night run. Long day in, long day out, and I thought I'd see some shore action. I didn't know I would be staying in a really seedy hotel in Long Beach, and I didn't have a car. I could certainly make it from L.B. to the shore on my own. I was wrong. Long Beach is a long way to walk to the closest beach when the temperature is in the 50's. to all of his acts would deprive the mother of the custody of the minor child. The mother has not been heard from since the child's birth. The father challenges the trial court's determination to grant permanent custody of the child to DHHR. The evidence demonstrates that the father is in poor health; he suffered a stroke and is partially paralyzed. He is a heroin addict and in drug treatment. The father is not able to perform his parental duties because of his physical limitations
